Supreme Court Denies Permit for Bus Line

Little Rock, Jan. 11 (AP)—Holding that the Missouri Pacific Railway and Transportation Co. were rendering adequate transportation service between Little Rock and Fordyce, the supreme court directed today to cancel a bus permit issued to the Eagle Transportation Co. over this route.

The High Tribunal said there was a need for readjustment of Missouri Pacific schedules at Fordyce but no occasion for additional service. The Missouri Pacific has agreed to readjust its schedules, the court said.

The Missouri Pacific charged at a transportation commission hearing that L. T. and L. N. Gray had obtained the Fordyce-Little Rock bus permit as a subterfuge and that Southwestern Greyhound lines actually was operating over the route in the name of Eagle Transportation Co.

This decision and another involving a contract of ownership of the Eagle Transportation Co. were the outgrowth of involved proceedings.

In a companion case, the supreme court held that a contract between H. M. Gregory of El Dorado and the Grays was invalid.

Gregory charged that the Grays had sold him one-half interest in operating rights between El Dorado and Little Rock for approximately $2,500 cash and an agreement to help obtain extension of the Grays' El Dorado-Fordyce operating rights to Little Rock. The trial court held the contract void as being against public policy, and the High Tribunal agreed.

The supreme court added that if additional service was required at a future date, the commission had continuing authority to hear evidence and determine the question.

A 15 year prison sentence assessed Mrs. Ola Chandler, Howard county, on a charge of enticing female persons for immoral purposes was affirmed.

Mrs. Chandler alleged the trial court erred in admitting incompetent testimony and refusing the give certain instructions to the jury, but the High Tribunal said these could not be considered because her attorneys failed to file a bill of exceptions within the allotted time after the trial.

Also affirmed was a three-year prison sentence given Bert Castee, Hot Springs merchant, in Sevier circuit court on an arson conviction. The state charged that Castee hired a man to burn his 1935 automobile near DeQueen to collect insurance.

Affirming Lawrence Chaney, Jr., D. Moore, former Hoxie town clerk, the High Tribunal ruled that treasurer, was not indicted to his account and the town was not entitled to recover against his bondsman. The town filed a suit against Moore or $1700 it alleged the former treasurer had failed to account for at expiration of his term in 1939.

The high court directed Adolph Feldman of Helena to pay his divorced wife, Jane, Little Rock, $450 back maintenance and $100 per month additional maintenance during pendency of Feldman's appeal from the divorce decree.

The court enrolled Cyrus K. Oakley of Fayetteville as a practicing attorney.

Reformers Active As Legislature Convenes Today

Little Rock, Jan. 11 (AP)—A variety of proposals, great and small, vague and definite, were floating around as Arkansas' general assembly met today.

On temperance, for example, they ranged from Rep. Elbert A. Leasure's declaration that he would seek a return to bone-dry prohibition to the much-discussed plan that the state take over liquor distribution through state wholesale.

Governor Adkins brought racing back into the limelight with a request that the racing commission reconsider authorization for this year's Hot Springs meet. Senator Henry B. Hardy, Greenbrier, said he would seek repeal of the horse and dog racing laws.

The anti-Saloon league and W.C.T.C. announced last night they not only would be active in the liquor question but would work for repeal of the laws legalizing racing. With the Arkansas better government league, they announced "forces" for legislative lobbying.

The latter organization, whose membership has not been disclosed, has been active mainly in Hot Springs affairs.

On budget matters the legislators were faced with Comptroller Bryan Sims' plea that they go easy on the largest cash balance in the state treasury's history and with the various appropriation applications totalling approximately $2,500,000 more than was voted in 1941.

Roy Milum, dean of the upper house, announced Saturday that if he found sufficient support, he would introduce a bill to abolish the nine mill state property tax. A closely knit economy bloc has been forming gradually and proposals such as Milum's were expected to outnumber the usually plentiful plans for new taxes.

Sometime before the session is over the Solons will deal with Governor Adkins' Paramount project—improvement of conditions at the state hospitals. It was indicated the administration also would sponsor proposals that Civil Service and four-year term amendments be submitted to the 1944 general election.

Little Rock, Jan. 11 (AP)—The 54th General Assembly, Arkansas' first war-time legislature since 1905, convened today but its opening day attention was not on the serious matters of budgets and revenue to the noon convening hour, the senate dissection over selection of a secretary grew more and more muddled. A series of caucuses and button-holing campaigns Sunday did not resolve into the expected settlement of the fight over former Representative E. J. Butler's candidacy.

Gov. Elbert B. Adkins issued a statement reiterating his preference for Butler, who was rejected by an unofficial senate gathering in December. Shaver said, however, he would work with anyone who was elected.

Late last night a group of administration senators conferred.

Flynn New Envoy to Australia, Brown Selected Chief of OPA, Rutledge Named to High Court

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt today announced to the Senate today the nomination of Wiley B. Rutledge, associate justice of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, to be an associate justice of the supreme court, and of Prentiss M. Brown, former Michigan senator, to be price administrator.

The chief executive also nominated Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the democratic national committee, to be minister to Australia, succeeding Nelson Johnson, who is retiring from the diplomatic service.

Josh Lee, former senator from Oklahoma, was nominated to membership on the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The 48-year-old Rutledge, former dean of the law school at the University of Iowa, will take the place vacated on the supreme court bench when James F. Byrnes was appointed economic stabilization director.

Brown will replace Leon Henderson, who announced several weeks ago he was resigning because of a back ailment and poor eyesight. Henderson agreed to serve until his successor could take over.

Brown, a former house member from Michigan before going to the senate, was defeated for reelection in November, as was Lee.

Two More Ships in Jap Convoy Hit, U. S. Fliers Bag 138 Enemy Planes

By The Associated Press

Allied Headquarters, in Australia, Jan. 11 Allied airmen boosted to 138 the Japanese planes shot down or crippled in four days of blazing action as they pursued the remnants of a battered Japanese convoy fleeing from New Guinea yesterday and scored bomb hits on two more ships, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The announcement put an emphatic period to previous reports which described the losses inflicted on the Japanese in their efforts to land reinforcements in northeast New Guinea as one of the most remarkable Allied aerial exploits of the war in the Southwest Pacific.

The only discordant note in the sweeping Allied successes was the disclosure that Brig. Gen. Kenneth N. Walker of Glendale, Calif., had failed to return from an aerial attack on Rabaul, New Britain, on Jan. 5 when he led a formation of Flying Fortresses and Liberators which damaged 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and shot down nine Japanese fighters.

Paralysis Fund Drive Opens in Hempstead

The annual Infantile Paralysis Campaign for funds to help sufferers from this disease, to which President Roosevelt has dedicated his birthday, is now open in Hempstead county.

The announcement comes from T. S. Cornelius, county chairman for the state organization which is headed by Governor Homer Adkins.

Mr. Cornelius' appeal to the local public follows: "One hundred forty-two little boys and girls—Arkansas' very own—were victims of infantile paralysis during the epidemic of 1942. But the world looks brighter to them because many citizens, who cared, planned for such an emergency under the direction of the Arkansas state chapter.

"President Roosevelt has dedicated his Birthday in order that funds may be raised to provide medical skill and hospitalization for polio victims financially unable to help themselves. Arkansas citizens have given generously of time and money to make these Birthday Campaigns successful.

"Sister Elizabeth Kenny came to our State, at the invitation of the Arkansas State Chapter, and personally supervised the Kenny Treatment; Kenny Technicians, who were made available, have remained constantly on duty. The combined medical aid, hospitalization and Kenny treatment should eventually result in 90 per cent of these unfortunate children being returned to their homes capable of resuming

Bi-Party Move for Stiff Tax Increases

By JACK BELL

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Bi-partisan proposals for stiff tax increases were made by legislators today as Congress awaited the reading of the largest government budget in world history—a $100,000,000 expenditure program drafted by President Roosevelt.

Designed to cover appropriations 1943 to June 30, 1944, the 1,000-page fiscal year from July 1, 1943, page budget document was expected to be devoted almost exclusively to war spending. Clerks of both houses were to read only the president's opening explanation.

Members of Congress, well aware that the war budget would be of staggering proportions, already are moving toward increasing the record-breaking return of present tax laws and toward providing sharper scrutiny of military as well as civilian appropriations.

A demand for "searching and minute consideration" of appropriation requests was made by Senator Nye (R-ND), ranking Republican on the Senate appropriations committee. He declared there also would be a "demand for full accounting of monies appropriated through more recent years."

Chairman George (D-CA) of the Senate Finance Committee told reporters he believed it would be possible, through a combination of taxes and enforced savings, to bring current treasury receipts up to at least one-half of prospective expenditures. The rest would have to be financed through sale of government securities.

Senator Danaher (R-Conn.), a member of the committee, said he thought the American people could bear a maximum increase in individual income taxes of ten percentage points in rates. Those in the lowest brackets now pay 19 per cent on the first taxable dollar, plus the five per cent victory tax imposed on all income above $624 a year.

"This would be a terrific jolt," Danaher conceded, "but we may have to do it to finance the war."

Reds Seize 13 Settlements in North Caucasus

—Europe

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

Moscow, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Red Army has seized 13 more settlements from the Germans in the North Caucasus, where the German-held railroad junction of Georgievsk was threatened with encirclement, and has broken a German salient thrust into Russian position on the central front far to the north, the mid-day communiqué said today.

The advance down the Lower Don continued despite desperate German efforts to block it some 60 miles northeast of Rostov, the key rail supply center in Southern Russia, it was reported. Another German-held community was gathered into the Russian lines in the Lower Don area.

Bitter fighting preceded the temporary success of the Germans on the central front. The communiqué acknowledged that a wedge had been driven into the Red Army's positions, but said a heavy Russian counterattack forced the Germans back to their original positions.

(The German high command said yesterday that a German shock troop division on the central front had captured 75 Russian strong points and destroyed their garrisons.)

In the North Caucasus, the capture of 13 more settlements by the Russians appeared to make the German position at Georgievsk still more precarious. An earlier communiqué had reported the city was half encircled.

The Russians said they had captured Georgievsk, four miles south of Georgievsk, and other small towns forming a semi-circle around the railroad junction. Vast stores of German mines, ammunition and other equipment fell into Russian hands, it was said.

The Germans, who had advanced down the Rostov-Baku railway last summer in quest of the oil of Grozny and Baku, already had withdrawn 75 miles from Mozdok to Georgievsk and they apparently faced a new withdrawal along the railway leading to the northwest.

Particularly fierce fighting was reported at a river position here the Germans had concentrated a large number of their six-barrel mortars and tanks. The Russian troops were said to have succeeded in crossing the river and throwing back the Germans in hand-to-hand fighting. More German prisoners were sent streaming to the rear, it was added.

The lower Don offensive was reported rolling forward over mounting German resistance with another populated place falling to the Russians along with a large ammunition dump and other materiel.

The Germans counterattacked and attempted to recapture the community, the war bulletin said, but withdrew leaving more than 100 dead on the snow in the face of Soviet machine-gun fire. In another sector of this important front, Russian tanks were said to be hammering forward after routing two enemy battalions.

Only on the central front west of Moscow did the Russians report a check to their offensives. In one sector, the mid-day communiqué reported, the Germans succeeded in driving a wedge into the Red Army positions, but the situation was said to have been restored by a determined Russian counter-

Two Arkansans Listed As War Casualties

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Two Arkansans were listed in the War Department's casualty list issued today covering the Southwest Pacific, South Pacific, African and European areas.

The Arkansans, both called in action in North Africa, were Pvt. Carl S. Brooks, son of David Franklin, George S. Martisek, son of Mrs. Amelia J. Martisek, Maunee.

The list carried the names of 394 men and officers killed.

Allied Planes Strike at Key Axis Points

—Africa

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 11 (AP)—Allied bombers have struck again at possible junction points for Marshal Rommel's Libyan forces and the Axis army of Tunisia, raiding Gabes, the village of Kibili west of that port, and Kairouan, an African air force spokesman announced today.

The highlight of the day's air activity was a one-man bombing attack by Maj. Philip George Cochran of Erie, Pa., who leads a P-40 Warhawk fighter group.

Along and carrying one large bomb, he swept over the roof tops of Kairouan and deposited the explosive in the middle of German military headquarters for the area. He reported the headquarters destroyed.

On returning from the target he was attacked by a P-40, Wulf 100. Although his plane was shot up, he held off the German fighter and returned safely to his base.

The Tunisian raids followed the first sweep by American bombers from the west against the Tripoli area in the aerial effort to smash Rommel's retreating troops before he can escape the British Eighth Army and join hands with German and Italian forces in the French protectorate on the Mediterranean narrows.

Martin marauders carried out the main raid of the day. They attacked railroad yards and oil storage tanks at Gabes with an escort of P-38 Lockheed lightning fighters.

About the same time Bostons escorted by Washawks struck at a German military camp at Kibili, on the Salt Lake 65 miles west of Gabes.

Adkins' Critics Seek Control in Senate

Little Rock, Jan. 11 (AP)—Critics of Governor Adkins' administration agreed shortly before the legislature convened at noon today, to make an immediate bid for control of the upper house by offering former Senator I. N. Moore, Dumas, in opposition to former Representative E. J. Butler, Forrest City, for the key office of Senate secretary.

Members who declined to permit use of their names said that if Moore was elected this afternoon they would move to clinch their control by nominating Senator G. W. Lookadoo, Arkadelphia, for president pro-tem.

The Adkins forces were reported backing the veteran Senator Ed Dillon, Little Rock, for this post now held by Senator Willis Smith, administration floor leader in 1941.

U. S. Spending 109 Billions a Year, FDR Says

—Washington

By IRVING PERLMEER

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt laid before Congress today a $10,000,000,000 war budget to speed the day of victory and to help raise this record sum he asked for $16,000,000,000 in additional taxes or compulsory savings.

Altogether, Mr. Roosevelt estimated government spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1 at $109,000,000,000, and he said in a message to the lawmakers, "this budget represents the maximum program for waging war."

The new tax program he suggested included a $25,000 limit on the income of anyone after payment of taxes, regardless of the source of his income.

The budget, which estimates spending for the 12 months beginning July 1, not only dwarfed anything in the history books, it repaid more than the annual money expenditures of all the other belligerents on both sides of the war, put together.

It was nearly three times what Germany is spending, four times England, and 14 times Japan.

In the current fiscal year, America's war cost was estimated by Mr. Roosevelt at about $77,000,000,000. Add to that another $19,000,000,000 spent between Pearl Harbor and the beginning of the current year, and the American war bill between Dec. 7, 1941, and June 30, 1944, will be $196,000,000,000—just $1,000,000,000 short of all the money spent by the treasury from the day George Washington was inaugurated in 1789 until the Japs attacked about a year ago.

"Some persons may believe that such a program is fantastic," commented the commander-in-chief. "If the nation's manpower and resources are fully harnessed, I am confident that the objective of this program can be reached, but it requires a complete recognition of the necessities of total war by all—management, labor, farmers, consumers, and public servants—regardless of party."

He did not translate this financial estimates into planes and tanks and ships — to do so, he said, would merely help the enemy. But he gave this breakdown of the general war program: (In billions of dollars)

Emphasizing that his figures meant weapons, not coins, and that the Axis would not be swamped by money, the president cautioned: "Victory cannot be bought with any amount of money, however large; victory is achieved by the blood of soldiers, the sweat of working men and women, and the sacrifice of all people."

To farmers he assigned the task of feeding the United Nations, for "food is a primary weapon of war," and he budgeted $837,000,000 for federal farm aids calculated against other things, to divert agricultural acres from luxury foods to nutrition essentials.

Besides those and War Bonds ahead for the civilian, the president said, "Unnecessary costs and frills should be eliminated. Total war demands simplification of American life. We fill out forms, carry coupons, answer questionnaires. We regulate prices, wages, salaries and rent; we limit consumer credit; we allocate scarce materials; and we ration scarce consumer goods all to the end of providing the materials of war and distributing the sacrifices generally."

Mr. Roosevelt said both he and Budget Director Harold D. Smith preferred to lay down a more explicit tax program, but the necessity of consulting congress limited them to the mere statement in the budget message: "I believe that we should strive to collect not less than $16,000,000,000,000 of additional funds by taxation, savings, or both, during the fiscal year 1944."

This sum, he said, would be on top of the $33,081,245,000 net revenues expected by the treasury from existing laws, and with these would provide enough to pay for half of the anticipated expenditures.

In a press conference, however, the president said one of his per-

Nedra Gibson is Bride of Lieutenant Francis S. Johnson

The First Baptist church was the scene Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock of the wedding of Miss Nedra Gibson, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Gibson, Sr., and Lieutenant Francis S. Johnson, United States Army Air Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Johnson of Providence, Rhode Island.

Southern smiles and fern adorned the altar. Floor standards were filled with white gladioli and in front of the beautiful arrangement were 7-branched candelabra entwined with greenery. The Rev. W. R. Hamilton, pastor, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Lt. C. H. Parrott lighted the tapers. Prior to the service Mrs. George Brandon of Marshall, Texas, vocalist, sang "I Love You Truly." She was accompanied by Mrs. J. C. Davis, church organist.

The traditional wedding marches marked the beginning and end of the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her grandfather, John S. Gibson, Sr., presented a lovely picture in her wedding gown of ivory duchesse satin distinguished by charming simplicity and designed with fitted bodice and fingertip sleeves ending in points at the wrist. The molded circular skirt fell from the low waistline into a graceful train. Her veiled veil of bridal illusion was attached to a band of seed pearls, which wore a single strand of pearls belonging to her mother, the late Mrs. C. W. Gibson. Her bouquet of bride's roses was bound with white satin ribbons.

Mrs. Alton Terry of San Angelo, Texas, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor, and she wore a gown of old rose tulle similar to the brides with long bodice banded in gold sequins. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Wanda Lane, Miss Vera Marie Porter, Miss Sue Rodgers and Miss Mary Nell Daniels. They wore pastel tulle gowns of identical design featuring short puffed sleeves, long torsos, and sweetheart necklines. They carried bouquets of Pernet roses in contrasting colors with satin ribbons matching their gowns.

In their coffers were rose buds matching their bouquets. Locketts, gifts of the bride, were their only ornaments.

Lt. Monocue Lyon served the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Captain Wesley Gamble, Captain C. I. Duffness, Lt. C. H. Parrott, and Lt. Harold S. Atwood.

Following the ceremony a small reception for members of the wedding party and relatives was held at the Gibson home.

The organically covered dining table was centered with a teared wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Crystal candelabra were flanked by the central ornament. On the sideboard were noted white carnations and white pom-pom mums interspersed with glowing white tapers in crystal holders.

After a wedding trip to Providence, R. I., the couple will be at home at 1024 South Walnut.

The bride is a graduate of San Angelo Texas high school and San Angelo Business college.

Lt. Johnson is a graduate of Hope Street High school, Providence, and of Northeastern University. He is a member of Phi Tau Kappa fraternity. At the present he is stationed at the Southwestern Proving Ground.

Thomsen's Wife Asks U of A to Honor Contract

Payetteville, Jan. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Fred C. Thomsen, wife of the former head football coach at Arkansas University, formally called on the university board of trustees today to honor his contract either by paying him off in full or granting a leave of absence.

"I believe my husband, Capt. Fred Charles Thomsen, now in foreign service of the Army Air Force and formerly full professor at the University of Arkansas, is entitled to the same consideration given to other professors in the university," she said in letters to board members.

Thomsen left his university duties last September to join the air force with about ten months of his three-year contract unfulfilled. Should a leave be granted, Mrs. Thomsen said she would expect it to contemplate later fulfillment of the contract "as to length of time, as to salary ($8,000 a year) and as to his status as head football coach and director of athletics."

"The other alternative is that you pay the full amount due Captain Thomsen on the unfulfilled part of his contract."

Bobby Feller's Father Dies Early Today

Van Meter, Iowa, Jan. 11 (AP)—One of the finest father-and-son partnerships in the world of sports was at an end today.

William Feller, 50, father, boyhood coach and counselor of baseball's Bob Feller died yesterday after a long illness. Death came in the 32,000 farm home which Bob built for his parents with his income from the pitching arm which was developed during years of patient guidance from his dad.

When Bob was eight his father began giving him regular practice in hurling, playing catch long hours with the youngsters when the day's chores were done and sometimes at night in the barn. As his son's skill increased, Bill Feller laid out a baseball diamond on his farm and organized a team so his boy might gain further experience.

To Bill Feller came the joy of seeing that son join the Cleveland Indians at the age of 17 and go on to great accomplishments including a no-hit game against the Chicago White Sox in 1939.

Bob who left the Indians to join the Navy is believed to be at his gunnery station somewhere at sea. He last visited his parents and sister, Marguerite, early last December.

with Shaver and announced that Butler probably would be elected by a small majority, indicating the contest would result in a floor fight.

Senator William A. Ward, Mariana, said he would continue to oppose Butler's selection because Shaver had not earlier acknowledged the senate's right to elect the secretary. Butler precipitated the senatorial hold-over court test last summer by filing against Ward.

Mentioned as possible compromise candidates before the senate convened were former Senator Ned Stewart, Texarkana, and Corporation Commission Inspector Ed Farvis, Little Rock.

The race for clerkship of the house was almost as warm as the senate fight. Former Senator Hal P. Smith, Clarendon and Retiring Representative Jack Machen, Magnolia each claimed he would be selected. Machen was supported by speaker-designate Bob Griffith and Smith claimed Governor Adkins' backing though the governor said he was keeping hands off.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—When this business of trying to train baseball clubs in the rigid north first came up, we asked Hugh Fullerton, Sr., about it, since pop's baseball experience goes back when southern trips were something of a novelty.

"I remember listening to Anson, Ryan, Burns and Mike Kelly (all about training in the snow banks on the lake front park at Chicago). Pop writes, 'and how Mike shoveled snow, and practiced hook slides into the snow at second. . . We trained at some funny places: Waycross, Ga., (where we were chased out of town after one week and went to Savannah), Hot Springs, Kansas City, New Orleans, Selma, Ala., Galveston, Shreveport. . . One spring Chicago went to West Baden, Ind., for ten days then to the University of Illinois and was in fine shape when it started barnstorming. . . The best-conditioned club I ever saw trained at Hudson, N. M., and hardly saw a baseball until a week before the season started, merely rode horses, climbed mountains and ran around the desert. They were eager to play ball when the season started. . . Maybe this will cure a lot of bunk."

A Cool Customer
One guy (like Joe DiMaggio) didn't have to worry about spring training. Pop reports, was a big pitcher named Rog Denver, who lived in Minnesota when the Cubs were in training. . . Rog didn't report for training. . . He didn't answer letters so a scout was sent after him, arriving on a sub-zero day. . . After nearly freezing on the way, Rog Denver's farm because the liveliest man thought it was too cold to take a horseout, the scout was directed to the barn. . . There he found Rog, in his undershirt, pitching at a sack of bran and cutting loose with all his speed. . . "In July of that year," Pop adds, "Rog complained that he was a hot weather pitcher and couldn't work well on chilly days."

Spring Training
Another idea from the same source is that most of the feuds within baseball clubs start from spring boredom. . . "Most of the players are sick of ball before the season starts, sick of exhibitions and anxious to start real play. When they have too much time on their hands, they form factions that break up clubs. . . The fights that occur during the playing season are flareups of anger; those of spring training are active hates."

Monday Matinee
The Portwines Victory Legion, which has raised $61,368 for USO and over $120,000 for the Red Cross, starts its third war charity collection a week from today. This led Bill Kuster of Kansas City to express this sentiment: "We've got to give. The beautiful thing about it all is that we don't have to give until it hurts because it doesn't hurt a Bowler to give."

San Francisco will stage its first 15-round fight in 30 years tonight when Eddie Booker defends Jack Chase. . . And that's the town where 20 to 40 rounders were commonplace in Jim Corbett's day. . . Imagine how like Armstrong, Utah's grid coach, fell when he used precious gas to drive 22 miles to speak in a neighboring town only to find he was 24 hours early. . . At least, nobody called it pleasant driving.

Today's Guest Star
Bill Reddy, Syracuse, N. Y., post-standard: "Bill Terry had a chance to invest some money in the Phillies, but bought some cows instead. Indicating that Terry not only knows which side his bread is buttered on, but also knows where to get the butter."

Training Jobs Open to Women, 18 to 25
The U. S. Employment Service, Hope, has just received information regarding the opportunity for young women between the ages of 18 and 25 to receive training in aircraft sheetmetal work. Jobs are available for all who complete the required training. Applications must be in good physical condition and must have completed the 8th grade.

Interested persons should contact the U. S. Employment office immediately, 201 East Second St., Hope.

W. Van Sickle Is in Navy Flight School
Athens, Ga., Jan. 11.—Beginning three months intensive physical conditioning and ground school work preliminary to further training for Naval aviation, Wallace W. Van Sickle, Hope, Ark., has recently enrolled in the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight School here.

Van Sickle, son of E. C. Van Sickle, 821 East Division, is a former student of Magnolia A. and M. He completed CAA Primary Training at Arkadelphia.

The shock of the torpedoes was very great. The flash of one extended over one hundred feet in the air. Capt. Forrest Sherman of the aircraft carrier Wasp.

sonal objectives was a $25,000 limit after payment of taxes which means, he said, a practical limit of $67,200 on all incomes. He said he could not understand why, in time of war, anyone should have more than that much income.

Previously, the president never went further in his public utterances than to instruct the treasury, as part of a general wage and salary regulation, to limit salaries to $25,000 after tax payments. This rule affected only a few thousand corporation executives, and did not touch, as Mr. Roosevelt's new suggestion would, the more thousands of millionaires who live off of stock dividends, trust funds, royalties, bond interest, and other types of income.

He indicated the belief that the present voluntary system of buying War Bonds may have to be supplemented by some compulsory savings scheme, favored putting taxes, as far as possible, on a pay-as-you-go basis, opposed a general sales tax in its usual form, and reiterated mandatory joint returns for husbands and wives, and abolition of tax-exempt securities.

The public debt, now $112,000,000, will rise, the president said, to about $210,000,000 by June 30, 1944, requiring a revision of the present $125,000,000 statutory limit.

"Such a debt," he commented, "can and will be repaid. The national pre-war level." It also means, he added, that "taxes probably will never revert to their pre-war level."

More so than in last week's "state of the union" message to Congress, the president appealed for political unity in today's message.

"I have read," he said, "of this bloc, and the other bloc which existed in past Congresses. May this new Congress confine itself to one bloc—a national bloc."

Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that his goal in preparing his budget was to buy all the output of the nation's factories and farms, leaving enough for essential civilian needs. He noted that "further efforts are necessary" to utilize even the small plants and businesses of the nation in the war effort.

Left for the ordinary civilian, the president figured, will be "an average of about $500 worth of goods and services during the year—an average reduction of almost 25 percent in civilian consumption below the record level of the calendar year 1941."

"During the calendar year 1943," the president continued, "approximately 6,000,000 people will be needed above present requirements for the armed services and war production. This number can be obtained by transferring from less essential work, and by drawing into the working force people who have not recently sought employment."

The armed services alone will need 9,700,000 men by the end of this year, and the budget reflected arms to equip all of them.

In his list of things that civilians president also made the statement that money is what they will have most in the next year. He calculated the national income at $135,000,000,000 this fiscal year, and $145,000,000,000 next year—compared with about $70,000,000,000 before Pearl Harbor and $40,000,000,000 at the depths of the depression.

Explaining the extra taxes and savings he proposed were also designed to siphon off some of this spare purchasing power, he noted, "under war condition a raise in profits, wages, and farm incomes unfortunately does not increase the supply of goods for civilians; it merely invites the bidding up of prices of scarce commodities."

He said families in the lower third bracket of income will have this year average earnings of $1,335, instead of $78, which was the 1935-36 average.

Outside of his "war expenditures" the president said the budget called for $9,000,000,000 of other costs, usually called "non-war," but he said these included $3,000,000,000 interest on the public debt, and $70,000,000 for the veteran administration.

He noted that the Works Projects Administration has been ordered abolished, public works curtailed and asserted that other normal government activities have been cut practically to the bedrock of activities required by existing laws. He said further cuts could not be made unless Congress repealed laws which called for these activities.

The actual total of treasury expenditures in the next year, Mr. Roosevelt added, will be $104,128,924,925, but to this should be added $4,774,234,000 of expenditures to be made outside the treasury by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Reserve Bank, and other corporations.

infantry was reported wiped out in another sector.

Two hundred Germans were reported killed in the action.

The entire German position in the Caucasus seemed to be imperiled as the Russians drove on along the lower Don toward Rostov and the rising fury of the German defense indicated the Germans realized the danger.

Describing the lower Don fighting, the midnight communiqué said one Red Army unit, "offering ahead in the course of the day beat off six enemy counterattacks."

"The Hitlerites suffering heavy losses and were unable to force back the offensive of the Soviet troops," the war report said. "By the end of the day our detachments with sudden assaults attacked the enemy in the flank. More than 800 Germans were killed and eight German tanks were destroyed."

Further south along the railway line from Stalingrad to Fikhoretsk and Novorossiisk on the Black sea, the Russians said they had captured several more places in the area of Zimovniki, 130 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

The Germans suffered heavy losses in both manpower and materiel there, the Russian communiqué reported.

On the central front, west of Moscow, the Russians said they were continuing their aggressive action against the Nazi invaders despite ceaseless counterattacks in some sectors.

In one of these encounters, the midnight communiqué reported, German infantry forces southwest of Velikie Luki were cut off from their supporting tank and armored car detachments and were facing annihilation. A company of German

Chungking Is One of the Highest Priced Cities World.

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Chungking, Jan. 9 (Delayed)—China's wartime capital is one of the highest priced cities of the world and as such reflects from the rest of the country a cost of living which is staggering.

Chungking presents some exceptions, of course, because it is an ancient provincial city which had metropolitan conditions suddenly thrust upon it.

Scarcity of accommodations and lack of suitable transportation facilities have forced some prices up. Still, conditions here give a fair gauge of the country's difficulties.

Life isn't easy in China these days, though it should be said that there is sufficient food, barring many districts in Honan province where there has been a drought.

Fortunately, wages of labor have increased enough so the working man and his family, generally speaking, aren't hungry. Many business men are keeping the wolf from the door. But the poor white-collar worker, as usual, is suffering heavily. Salaries haven't moved up with the cost of living.

Because of the lack of materials, it is likely the plaster in your house is falling off and holes in the roof may let in rain. Your plumbing, if you have plumbing, may not work.

The lack of transportation has created a scarcity in many things and coal, of which China has much, is one of these. Chungking government offices and public places like restaurants are forbidden to have fires, although the winter weather is raw and cold.

Gasoline is as precious as molten pearls and motor cars are few and far between.

With all this, you might think the Chinese might be downhearted and rather sorry for themselves—but not so. They are as a whole about the most extraordinarily cheerful folk I've encountered, and I've travelled in maybe 50 countries or more.

I'm glad I came to China if for nothing else but to see these people laugh. Having experienced their irrepressible spirits, I have no fears whatever that the Japs can beat them. You can't defeat a people who have such a pronounced sense of humor as the Chinese.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—The president's $100,000,000 budget was taken in stride by the stock market today and selected industrial, paced by steels, moved up fractions to around 2 points.

It was hardly a one-way trail, however, and while favorites stiffened after a slightly mixed opening, many leaders made little if any progress. Utilities were subjected to profit cashing in the wake of their recent rally. Gains elsewhere were reduced in the final hour and losers were plentiful.

Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

Secondary railway bonds again had buying attention. At Chicago wheat rose off 1-4 to 3-8 of a cent a bushel and corn unchanged to up 3-4. Cotton, in late trades, was 15 to 35 cents a bale improved.

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Cotton futures rallied sharply in the late trading today on commission house, New Orleans and local buying. The advance was prompted by expectations of continued heavy lend lease business, more active mill inquiry for spot cotton, and heavy agricultural appropriations contained in the president's budget message. The demand met scale up hedge selling and profit taking.

Late prices were 25 to 50 cents

2 Garland Elections to Be Investigated

Fort Smith, Jan. 11 (AP)—Without mentioning Garland (Hot Springs) county, Federal Judge John E. Miller instructed the grand jury today to investigate last summer's two democratic primaries.

Saturday Miller ordered the Garland county clerk and treasurer to bring the county's original ballot boxes here today for grand jury inspection.

"The grand jury should be careful that a man's good name is not destroyed or sullied to satisfy public clamor nor to aid those who through any ulterior motive may attempt to defame another," Miller said the jury.

He said it should not concern itself with violations of state laws. U. S. District Attorney C. R. Barry announced August 8 that irregularities in the July 28 prerogative primary had been reported in Garland county and that a federal investigation would be instituted.

So Your Husband's Gone to War!

By ETHEL GORHAM
Copyright, 1942, by Ethel Gorham Distributed by AP Features

Chapter Seven
Wolves In Friends' Clothing
DON'T think there won't be any men after your husband goes to war.

You can be cross-eyed or bow-legged or hide your light under a bushel at night—but you'll find a cross-eyed man to follow you, a bow-legged one to phone you, a blind one who will petition you in Braille.

Especially if you're "alone." Ah, how men love the thought of the little woman alone. You can be devoid of glamour as a turnip (which of course you're not), as unsexed as a sister of charity, as wrapped up in your family as an old retainer, but let you be manless for a spell and, lo and behold, there's a man around.

The desolate woman is the most appealing of all objects to the wandering male. Her very desolation implies the brutality of men toward women, and the big bullies, they love it.

Give a man a woman who is totally manless and what has he got to gain? But just put him on to a woman who has been left temporarily alone and it utilizes his vanity, offers the chance of gallantry without too closely involving him, gives him a situation where he's certain there's no outraged innocence to face.

What are you going to do about it?

There are two things to consider in whether you date or don't date. One—should you at all? Two—is it worth it?

The wife who has been married for quite a while can make quick work of the first consideration by lumping it in the second. She should if it's worth it. After all, if you're securely married, you're in a soft spot where men are concerned. You are emotionally tied down. Your life has security. You don't need "awakening." If you accept an invitation you do it on a purely speculative level. Will it be gay? Will it be better than staying home—married? Will it be more amusing than going to the movies alone?

YOU don't have to do what so many of our unmarried sisters do (Haven't we all, at one time or another?)—go out with men who don't particularly like us, because it's better to get out and about than stay home—and always remember the others you may meet when out.

It would be foolish to pretend, however, that you can go out constantly with one man, no matter how friendly the relationship, and find that it stays on an even keel.

There are some women who can't be just a big-sister to some men, no matter how much they want to. Especially if they go out in a succession of dates that have all the urgency of a courtship. If you pile up cocktail date on dinner date, luncheon on theater, flowers and telephone calls on long daily walks, what can you expect?

Go to the concert tonight if he asks you. But be too busy to go anywhere again for a week or two. Be really too busy—you'll be the better for it.

What a single woman might do is her own affair. The best you can do is beware of any tantalizing alliances before you get in them.

Regardless of whether your husband is here or three thousand miles away, you stand a better chance of future adjustment if you don't get yourself in a stew. And the best way to get yourself in a stew is to get yourself in a Situation.

More wishing, however, won't keep you immune from possibilities. No matter how devoted you may be to your husband there's always some man waiting around.

But by and large, barring only such mad true passions as happen solely in Flaubert, you can keep things under control or on a high level.

ONE thing you ought never to do, even if you romantically imagine it's the grand passion of your life, is get too close to your fellow officer or soldier that your husband has asked to look you up.

Just because a man is in uniform doesn't mean you are comforting your husband by proxy. Go out dancing. Go out dining. Give the kid go on his leave. But he's just as much a man for all of his uniform, and "tomorrow we die" can get you into serious trouble in the end.

Use your sense about the men you go out with and pick them carefully. The best of course are your husband's old friends. They spring the fewest surprises, though when they're unexpected they're terrific. Usually, however,

Presbyterian Men to Meet Tuesday Night

The monthly Supper Meeting of the men of the Presbyterian church will be held Tuesday night of this week at 7:30 p. m.

A splendid menu has been prepared and an unusual program will be presented, consisting of sound movies in color, of India, Burma and other points of interest.

A good attendance expected.

lonely wife. You know the type? The kind who dashes about paying money bills for you, but he takes the trouble. Who puts up your screens and takes your little boy fishing. Ah, the shoulder he gives you to lean upon, the time and consideration that are yours without asking. If you don't watch out the shoulder becomes a take-all or leave-it proposition and the time and consideration only a nuisance.

Because it takes two to make a bargain, don't blame everything on the man if a nice casual date goes moaning low. Maybe you're the one that starts it. All don't think that just because you are married you have a right to indulge in head tossings and come-ons and then whine and weep because men are beasts.

So considering all the pros and cons, why not go out? Your marriage has a good foundation and certainly a jaunt to the movies won't shake it. Nunlike retreat is for them that like it, not a necessary concomitant of separation.

Your Federal Income Tax

Clip Out This Article—The Complete File Will Tell You How Much Tax You Owe March 15.

No. 7
INCOME OF MINORS
The earnings of a minor child must be included in the return of the parent unless the child has become emancipated from parental authority in accordance with the laws of the State in which he lives, or if, under the laws of the State, the child is entitled to his own earnings, whether anticipated or not. The laws regarding emancipation vary in different States, and the facts in each case determine the liability for inclusion of such income in the return of the parent.

In the absence of proof to the contrary, a parent is assumed to have the right to the earnings of the minor and must include them in his return. A parent may voluntarily surrender or relinquish the legal right to the services and earnings of a minor child, but if he has done so, he must be in a position to show proof of such relinquishment.

A minor is one who has not yet reached full legal age. In some States both men and women come of age, or reach the age of majority, at the age of 21, while in some States men become of age at 21 and women at 18.

If a minor has income of his own, either through earnings over which he has legal control or income from other sources, such as property he possesses or funds held in trust for him, he must file a return (or a return must be filed in his behalf by his parent or guardian) if the total income for the year amounted to $500 or more.

Even though a child has earnings of his own his parent may be entitled to claim a credit for dependent on his account provided the parent furnished the chief support of the child.

837 Millions of Budget for Agriculture

By OVID MARTIN
Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—Declaring food to be a primary weapon of war, President Roosevelt recommended in his annual budget message to congress today that $837,000,000 in agricultural aid funds be appropriated to facilitate a program calling for a record output to farm products.

Such funds would be part of a direct appropriation of $991,996,154 the chief executive asked be made available for the 1943-44 fiscal year. The amount appropriated for the current fiscal year was $823,646,665.

Mr. Roosevelt, declaring that an adequate food supply was a basic aspect of total war, said full responsibility for determining and fulfilling the food requirements have been placed in Secretary Wickard.

"Our agricultural production," the president said, "is larger than ever in our history but the needs of our armed services are so great that a shortage of certain foods is inevitable. The production of less-needed commodities must be reduced, while the production of commodities for war and essential civilian use may be increased. It is imperative that this increased demand for food be adjusted to available supplies."

Writer in War Zone Jots Down Notes

By HAROLD V. BOYLE
With the Allied Force Headquarters in North Africa, Jan. 6 (Delayed)—(AP)—Lester Kinsman, war correspondent's notebook:

Little French boys in Oran have the habit of dashing up to American soldiers and correspondents and asking for five francs.

"Why should I give you five francs?" I asked one, the tenth to put the arm on me in an hour.

"Because you are an American," said the boy. Then he laughed.

"Why do you laugh?" I asked.

"Because you are so funny. Everybody knows there are no poor people in America."

Brigadier General Albert Walton Kenner, of Washington, D. C., an army surgeon, is cool-headed, nervous and quick thinking. He joined the army officers in a wild boar hunt in the Atlas mountains, arranged by French and native officials, and knocked over three boars with his ration of six shotgun shells.

He did it by waiting until the beasts were only a few yards away before he fired. The last boar, a 150-pounder, was hit only five yards. The boar went down struggling to its feet and continued the charge. The general's gun was empty; there was no time to reach for his pistol. As agile as Tarzan the general leaped for an overhanging bough. The boar dashed ferociously under him, staggered on for 40 yards and fell over dead.

The Ali Baba hotel was the strangest in all Africa, and its four proprietors were the friends of all wayfarers.

They were quartered at an air transport command station at the most desolate airport in this dark continent. Their billet originally was a bare and frigid and altogether wretched shack. A morass of mud separated it from the runway where the American planes took off.

When it rained, the mud in front of the Ali Baba hotel became a bottomless gray slippy pit known as Lake Placid. In the memory of the American campaign no man had known that, and it was a mud-bath famous. Persons, a thousand miles away would look at a perfect stranger and say: "I see you've been through blank airport."

The chief owner of the Ali Baba was Major Ed Coates, a veteran commercial airlines pilot and air transport command officer from Mountain Lake, Fort Worth, Texas. His accomplices were Lieut. Bill Smith, of Sands Point, Long Island; Lieut. Henry L. Brown of El Paso, Tex., and Sgt. Milton R. Rosen-

Jap Resistance on Guadalcanal Declared Weak

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)—The Navy announced today that American forces on Guadalcanal island had made small advances into enemy territory against weak resistance following an artillery barrage and aerial bombing and strafing.

Communiqué No. 247 said: "South Pacific: (All dates east longitude).
"On January 10:
"(A) United States forces on Guadalcanal laid down an artillery barrage on Japanese positions.
"(B) Dauntless dive bombers (Douglas SBD) and Aircobra fighters (Bell P39) followed up the shelling by bombing and strafing the enemy areas.
"(C) Following the shelling and bombing, United States ground forces made small advances into enemy territory. Enemy resistance to the advances was weak."

While the combined use of artillery, air and ground forces suggested the possibility that the major operation to crush the weakened and starving Japs on Guadalcanal might be in the making, a Naval spokesman said that today's communiqué of itself apparently indicated only minor action.

It came, however, as one of a series of reports over the last several weeks telling of minor actions which in their cumulative effect on the Japanese opposition and strength may be very considerable.
